

I believe that it is indefensible to change the FCC regulations regarding ownership of TV and radio stations without making the nature of those changes public and allowing ample time for public discussion and debate about them. Further concentration of the ownership of the sources of TV and radio broadcast content is not in the interests of the US people and of US democracy.